Art Unit: 1742

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-9 and 23-27, drawn to a method of resultant potential drop correction in an electrochemical mechanical polishing (ECMP) system, classified in class 205, subclass 644.
 - II. Claims 10-18, drawn to a computer-readable medium, classified in class 711, subclass 100.
 - III. Claims 19-22, drawn to an electrochemical mechanical polishing system, classified in class 204, subclass 242.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions I and III are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another and materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the apparatus can perform a polishing process that does not involve resultant potential drop correction.

3. Inventions I and II are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another and materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the computer-readable medium can be used to execute a program on a different apparatus that does not involve resultant potential drop correction.

4. Inventions II and III are directed to related apparatus. The related inventions are distinct if the (1) the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect; (2) the inventions do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; and (3) the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants. See MPEP § 806.05(j). In the instant case, the inventions as claimed can run different modes of operation, such as a computer-readable medium can be used to execute a program on a non-ECMP apparatus while the ECMP apparatus can perform a polishing process. The inventions do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants. Furthermore, the inventions as claimed do not encompass overlapping subject matter and there is nothing of record to show them to be obvious variants.

5. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
